THE MANSFIELD HOTEL

The Mansfield Hotel is located on the famed Club Row, one of the most prestigious and history-laden blocks in New York City. In 1890, James Renwick, the celebrated architect of Saint Patrick's Cathedral and the New York Public Library, was retained to design the Mansfield Hotel.

A portal to a New York City of days gone by, the historic landmark 126-room Mansfield Hotel enjoys a prime location in the heart of the city on 44th Street between Fifth and Sixth Avenues. Broadway theatres, fine restaurants, shopping, and celebrated sites are all within a short walking distance.

The Mansfield's amenities are tailored for the 21st-century traveler: wireless internet access, 24-hour business center, newly built fitness facility, and complimentary European-style breakfast, are just a few of the services provided to all hotel guests. Also, cappuccino, espresso, tea and coffee are compliments of the hotel 24 hours a day in the Club Room, its signature chamber reminiscent of a turn-of-the-
